News From the President

By Mike Edmonson

Happy Christmas!

Such a greeting that many don't hear unless you happen to be reading something along the lines of Clement Moore's "Twas' the Night Before Christmas". These greetings evoke great memories of nostalgia, family, friends, warm fires, and children anticipating the gifts that will be found in their stockings and under the tree on Christmas morning. And as we motor into December, my hope is that you will relive many of these great memories, and maybe make a few new ones during the first couple of jam-packed weeks of this month.

Of course we open with our only breakfast of the month - our monthly "First Saturday Breakfast" at Denny's on December 6. That same afternoon provides an opportunity to drive your festively decorated Model A in the annual Wilshire Square Holiday Parade in Santa Ana. While this is a small community parade, it is always very well attended by the residents of this historic neighborhood; if you plan to attend, please reach out to Aaron Magdaleno.

Another opportunity to decorate your Model A's (or to keep them decorated) is the next day on Sunday evening (December 7th) as we are once again touring neighborhoods in search of Christmas lights and beautiful displays. This year Doug Marsh has developed a twist, with the tour(s) starting and ending at the Coté's. Broken into three separate maps, you can choose to travel and enjoy at your own pace. And this year Ed and Patti are once again opening their beautiful home with various yummys and hot cocoa, and some added entertainment by a barbershop quartet!

On Thursday the 11th we wrap up our week-long holiday extravaganza with our annual Christmas party!!! We once again dispense with the normal board meeting and start the party early at 7pm, so don't be late. Keep an eye out for information from Becky on what to plan on brining, most importantly.....yourself, however. This will be a fun time to just relax and enjoy each other's company. This will also be a good opportunity to pay your annual club dues and purchase tickets for the Installation Banquet (taking place on January 4th). Also, two board positions remain open: Vice President and Technical Director. I would love and greatly appreciate seeing these important positions filled as we move into the new year.

So.....

See you at the turnaround point,

Mike

Alignment Tools and Techniques by Eric Engle

Ron Andrews, our Technical Seminars Director, set up a seminar on several different methods of aligning a Model A's front end. A good size group of club members gathered at the MacIntosh home. And as is pretty much mandatory, the morning started off with several dozen donuts and a large pot of coffee.

Don Ratzlaff started off by showing an alignment tool that he made. Spring loaded, so as to press outwards on the tire/rim to hold it in place as the vehicle is rolled back and forth to verify that the "toe-in" is somewhere between 1/16" – 1/8". Very ingenious homemade device. Good work Don!

Next, yours truly brought in his store bought alignment tool that is easily found at most Model A outlets. I also brought in what I believe to be an old-fashion tool that I found hanging on the wall of my father's garage, with no instructions whatsoever. But it's an interesting "conversation piece"!

And lastly, Nathan Sherry brought in a device he purchased at a swap meet. Different from the rest, it requires that both front wheels be removed, and then the 2 devices bolted to the brake drums. There are two (2) tape measures stretched between the 2 devices, one on each side of the axle sides. The measurements are then compared and the toe-in adjustment made. Very interesting method!

Rick Hall also shared at the November meeting that he has a device that works with wheels on the ground and not having to be removed. It connects to the inside of the wheels.

All-in-all it was a rather interesting seminar; very informative. Great work Ron. It would seem that everyone attending learned something new.

Don Ratzlaff's home-made tool

This Editor's 2 different devices. On the left is the common store bought variety. On the right is the old fashion variety found on dad's wall.

Nate Sherry's interesting device installed, showing clearly how it is used to get things JUST right!

Dear Club Members,

I would like to take this opportunity to express thanks to all who helped make the technical seminars so successful this year. One learns in the army never to volunteer for anything, LOL, so I did anyway, to help Mike out since he was moving to President. I was really apprehensive about doing the job, but once I was committed I decided to carry on! Yikes! What subjects?

There were too many. "I really can't cover them all", I thought. Our club is so great, the subjects just fall in line. One of the ladies asked how about a driving seminar? So, we did it! When members came up with problems with their cars, we aligned them with the seminars. Especially issues with my own car and Mikes. We covered glass run channels, temperature gauge and others.

One fact in our club is that we have very knowledgeable members who have been around these cars long enough to be so beneficial.

I really want to Thank the members who hosted and put on the seminars. I think we covered some essential topics and we had some great outings also. I have learned so much from so many of you and it's really priceless.

Once again, I want to Thank all who helped me and the club for putting up with me.

Regards.

RA

thank you

Our Model A Stories by Becky MacIntosh

Domonic Cimarusti's 1930 Model A Tudor

Domonic Cimarusti's 1930 Model A Tudor has been in the family since it was purchased new in 1930 by his grandfather—also named Domonic. Over the decades, the car passed from one brother to another before eventually landing in our Domonic's care, where it spent nearly 30 years silently sitting in the backyard.

Always painted black, the Tudor began a full frame-off restoration in 2008 under the hands of Don Ratzlaff, Jim Runyon, and Domonic. The project took seven years to complete, finishing in 2015. Even after restoration, the car has continued to provide its share of surprises; Jim and Don often joke that Domonic's grandfather must be haunting it, given the unusual number of quirks and challenges it presents—even by Model A standards.

Today, the Tudor is a familiar sight on OCMAFC tours and in local parades. Some of the proudest moments came during the COVID years, when it participated in the club's "Hero Tours," visiting fire stations, hospitals, and care centers throughout the region to lift spirits during difficult times.

This well-traveled vehicle will continue to be a Cimarusti treasure.

Wagon Tales: Episode 4 by David Knapp

Calvin and Hobbes (the cartoon) always seem to have fun racing down hills in their wagon. In one cartoon, they are discussing how fast they are going. Hobbes suggests to Calvin that they could measure the distance, time our run, calculate feet per minute and convert it to miles per hour. Calvin says "that sounds like math! No thanks!" How does this relate? Well, I have a Model A.

Woody has a speedometer, but the readings are more a fantasy than what is really happening. Despite lubing the cable, checking connections and more, the speedometer likes jumping around. When it does hold steady, it most certainly lies. When Woody says we are traveling at light speed (80mph), it actually is a remarkable feat because we are going 62 per GPS. For something shaped like a brick and weighing more than almost any other Model A, 62 is really hauling! I am sure it will go faster, but we are definitely not going to find out. Even with the brand new brakes, 55mph is a more reasonable and comfortable speed!

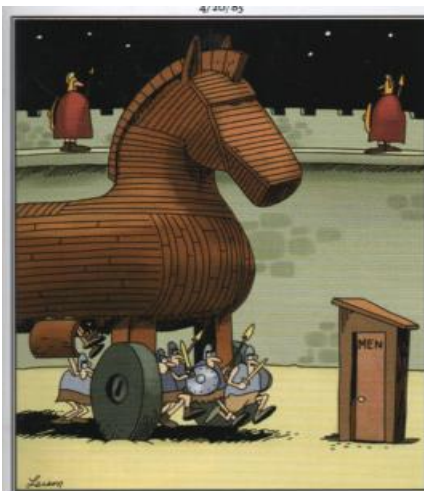

I know I was a bit jumpy when going 62 in our Model A, but why does my speedometer have to be that way too? The speedometer cable has received lubrication. The gear in the clamshell area looks good. And finally, the speedometer was rebuilt by Dad before we got the car. Fortunately, speeding tickets are not much of a concern. Woody is typically more of a traffic impediment than a hot-rodder nuisance. It would be nice to know how fast we are actually going without use of a GPS device. If you know our problem with the speedometer, reach out—I will slow down and listen. Happy motoring!

A Shade Tree Mechanic's Thoughts on Life and Cars: Winterizing Your Model A (Southern California Style)

By Wade Ratzlaff

Here in Southern California, “winterizing” your Model A doesn’t mean digging out snow chains or checking your antifreeze for a trip across Donner Pass. Around here, it’s more like getting ready for that two-week stretch in January when it rains just long enough to remind you where your roof leaks. Still, a little preparation can make sure your old Ford stays happy through the “harsh”

Southern California winter—where frost on the windshield is rarer than a working vacuum wiper.

First things first; let’s talk coolant. Some folks will tell you to drain it and run straight water during our mild winters. Don’t do it. A 50/50 mix of antifreeze not only keeps the temperature steady, it also prevents corrosion in your block, head, and radiator. Your Model A may not see freezing temps often but rust never takes a holiday.

Next, check your battery. Cold (by California standards) mornings can make an old six-volt system crank a little slower than usual. Clean those terminals, check the fluid level, and if your car sits for long stretches between parades, a trickle charger will keep it ready for that sudden Sunday cruise when the sky’s blue and the doughnuts are fresh.

Let’s not forget the fuel system. If you’re not driving much during the winter, top off your tank and add a splash of fuel stabilizer. That keeps moisture and ethanol mischief at bay. Otherwise, you’ll find yourself in February staring at a varnished carburetor wondering why your A sounds like it’s running on varnish and disappointment.

Now for tires and lubrication—the unsung heroes. Cold nights can drop tire pressure, so check it regularly. And while you’re down there, grab that grease gun and hit the fittings. There are 28 points on the Model A that need attention, and if you can’t remember them all, that’s okay—just remember to keep the ones that squeak quiet and the ones that move slippery.

Finally, the interior. If you’re lucky enough to have a garage, keep her covered and out of the damp. If not, invest in a good car cover and maybe a box of dryer sheets or mothballs to convince the local rodents that your wiring harness isn’t an all-you-can-eat buffet.

Southern California winters might not test your antifreeze, but they’re the perfect time to tinker. When the mornings are crisp and the afternoons sunny, there’s no better time to polish the chrome, adjust the brakes, or finally fix that one dim taillight you’ve been ignoring since the Nixon administration.

So yes, “winterizing” in our part of the world may look more like “organizing the garage, airing the tires, and dusting off the picnic basket,” but the idea’s the same: take care of your Model A now, and she’ll take care of you come spring-time—when the roads are clear, the sky is bright, and the smell of oil and exhaust once again signals the start of touring season.

Because whether it’s snowing or sunny, one truth remains constant: A happy Model A is one that’s driven.
